MANILA, INDONESIA—About 300 million people risk losing homes and livelihoods unless climate change is taken to prevent Southeast Asia's biologically diverse coral reefs that could be wiped out in coming decades because of rising sea levels, an international environmental group warned on Wednesday.

In a 220-page study presented at the World Ocean Conference, the World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF) said that rising ocean temperatures, sea levels and acidity threatened diversity both in the Coral Triangle, a region labeled the

'GMA bid talk of Pampanga'

By Allan W. Lopez and TJ Burgonia

FORMER PRESIDENT Joseph Estrada yesterday warned that "there could be trouble" if the administration and its allies succeed in pushing through with Charter change before 2010.

"I am afraid the masses will not allow it," Estrada said in a statement, referring to a nationwide plebiscite that must be held to ratify whatever constitutional amendments would be proposed by a constituent assembly.

The prepared plan of President Macapagal-Arroyo to again seek a government post has long been an "open secret" in her home province of Pampanga, the United Opposition (UO) claimed yesterday in reaction to reports that she may run for prime minister once the Constitution is amended.

Makati Mayor and UO president Jovito Salazar said in a Union Rep. Victor Ortega's statement to the Congress on Tuesday that Mr. Arroyo may run for the parliamentary post, mostly confirmed the rumors making the rounds in Pampanga.

"During my recent visit to Pampanga, everyone I talked to—from government officials to the bicycle drivers—are preparing for Mr. Arroyo's reentry in 2010," Estrada said in a statement.

"They are not really sure if it's for Congress or for parliament, but they are sure the will do it," he said.

Estrada said that "the people want administration change, but not corruption."

SCIENTIST'S 'WILD IDEA'

Human error cause of A(H1N1) probed

THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION (WHO) is investigating a claim by an Australian researcher that the swine flu virus circling the globe may have been created as a result of human error.

Adrian Gibbs, 75, who co-discovered an outbreak that led to the development of Roche Holding AG's Tamiflu drug, said in an interview that he intended to publish a report suggesting the new virus may have accidentally evolved in eggs that scientists used to grow viruses and drug makers used to make vaccines.

"One of the simplest explanations is that it's a laboratory error," Gibbs said in an interview with Bloomberg Television on Wednesday. "But there are lots of others."

The disclosure came yesterday in China and Hong Kong respectively confirmed their second cases of swine flu. The A(H1N1) virus has killed 81 people worldwide.

Gibbs said he came to his conclusion as part of an effort to trace the virus' origins by analyzing its genetic blueprint.

The WHO received Gibbs' study last weekend and was reviewing it, Raji Palakka, the agency's assistant director general of health security and surveillance, said.

DETAINED COL. ABEL QUERUBIN yesterday took the first step toward his bid for a Senate post in new year's elections, registering as a voter, bagging southern and kissing babies.

The benighted Marine soldier facing rebellion charges got a "daylight pass" from his cell at Camp Aguinaldo and at 4 a.m., was driven for the two-hour trip to Marikina, La Union, with four military escorts.

It took the 30-year-old Querubin 45 minutes to register at Marikina, La Union, and with his son for the Senate, and to be with his son.

IT'S BACK TO SQUARE ONE FOR THE P13.3-billion project of the Commission on Elections (Comelec) to fully automate new year's elections after it earlier raised the possibility of partial automation that sparked condemnation from the Senate.

The Comelec's Special Bids and Awards Committee (SBAC) announced last night that it had decided to grant the motions for reconsideration of four bidders, rejecting three others.

'Ex-general used P40M in Balikatan funds'

By Joseph R. Uy

A PHILIPPINE NAVY JUNIOR OFFICER has known the whistle as a retired general and other military officers for allegedly pocketing over P40 million in US funds for joint military exercises in 2007 and is getting hit by a tax of 10%.

Navy Lt. Nancy Gades told reporters in a phone interview yesterday that retired Lt. Gen. Eugenio Gadea, as chief of the Western Mindanao Command (Westcom), used the much-lauged RAUS Balikatan exercises two years ago in Jolo, Sulu, as a "milking cow."

Gades, who filed her resignation last month, claimed that of the P40 million provided by the Americans, only P13.3 million was released to Filipino troops.

"We are more than willing to provide the Senate with documents, including the results of their planning exercises," said Gades, who was then assistant chief of staff of Westcom's civil military operations.

The also said other high-ranking officers were involved, but she would only reveal their names "at the proper forum."

In an interview over radio station DZRH, Gades laughed off Gades's allegations, saying that the justice officer he would join the crowd like a true politician, embracing mothers and screaming babies.

Former grade school classmates volunteered to accompany the soldier who has been detained for three years for allegedly attempting to overthrow the Arroyo administration in 2006. (See the front-page story.)

The officer's arrest and imprisonment, Jan. 16 in Cebu, and his subsequent arrest in the United States on the highly profiled case involving another detainee to run for a Senate seat, had also another detainee soldier officers, Lt. Arroyo Velasco (V) who was while accompanying behind bars in 2007.

Campaign pitfalls discussed

"His father about it last night," Lame said. Attesting how Querubin sought to map out the pitfalls and advantages of a campaign without political party backing.

At home in San Francisco City Querubin outlined his political vision when he spoke at Cebu the King College in some of his 2006 grade school classmates, who decided to form the World Quirinians Movement for Arroyo's Philippines.

Among the officer's classmates were a banker, a subeditor, developer, a government accountant and a doctor, who has been known for promoting grade runs against his appearance.

Some of them were curious about how Querubin would react should he receive invitation to join the opposition party or the administration party to challenge for his allegiance to President Macapagal-Arroyo.

Swearing from English to Filipino, Querubin answered his classmates that he planned to stay in the opposition. But it did not mean, he said, he would reject any opposition party.

"I could swear allegiance but then I had one thing in mind (the old administration) and I must follow party lines. I would be compromised," Querubin said.

Many of these parties, he said, have made "too much political noise" about the Arroyo administration's supposed mistakes, without pointing their charges to court.

"You can, of course, be oppositionist government goes wrong... (Arroyo) officials must be held accountable. In the court divide... They have started creating and spreading lies so we had had single-line," Querubin said.

Lame, a law student, said one of Querubin's last thoughts about a senatorial campaign was how the public might associate him with Trillanes, one of the leaders of the failed 2001 second attempt in 2005.

"They are very different, although in the public they appear to be fighting for the same cause," Lame said.

La Union's jewel

The number seven was, given with warm applause, shared and drawn by a number of supporters who had gathered in the hangar hall in Baguio town to greet a glimpse of La

Union's "jewel," Lame added.

"There were also someone present to welcome him. The crowd is very grateful," he added.

Before he accomplished his registration, Querubin dropped by the municipal hall to meet with the mayor and later went to his home to visit his mother.

"This is an essential, necessary step for his senatorial bid," Lame said.

Military won't intervene

The military would not take a stand on any Querubin or any of the other detained soldiers (see sidebar) political office run.

"If they felt that they can contribute to the progress of the country and do more good, then they can," said Lt. Col. Romeo Benerio Jr.

Abside from Querubin, three flag-dash soldiers—former Marine Capt. Gary Alajano, Navy Lt. James Lopez and Air Force Pilot Lt. Francisco Subby Arellano—have declared their intention to run for office in the 2010 elections. With a report from FT Express, Inquirer Wireline La

IN THE KNOW

MARINE COL. ABEL QUERUBIN IS ONE OF 20 military officers facing court-martial on charges they were involved with drug seizures at the Basilan in Feb. 2006.

Querubin and the others are accused of a shooting in which President Macapagal-Arroyo, who was then under a state of national emergency after a military plot to overthrow her, was killed.

The detained officers include three who are now in jail.

In 2006, Querubin was one of 19 serving soldiers and police officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines who, in January 2002, were implicated in the President's assassination. He is currently held at Camp Aguinaldo in Quezon City.

Relieved of posting

Immediately after the 2006 election, Querubin was relieved of his post as commander of the First Marine Brigade in Camp Aguinaldo, Manila City, and was assigned to Fort Bonifacio. He is currently held at Camp Aguinaldo in Quezon City.

In June 2007, he petitioned the Supreme Court to stop the court-martial proceedings, saying he would not get a fair trial from the military. The court denied his petition in July 2008.

Querubin was arrested at Camp Aguinaldo in December 1999—the most serious of 10 charges against him under the Arroyo administration.

The body injured Querubin was later diagnosed among dead bodies at Quinsig Hospital in Quezon City. Lame, a doctor, noted his body was found, he was then transferred to the V. Larrosa Memorial Center for medical care in Manila.

Querubin was granted amnesty in 1995, after which he resumed his military duties.

Model of valor

Despite his rebellious past, Querubin was awarded the Medal of Valor, the highest military award for bravery in combat, for leading his March 2000 liberation of Marikina from the hands of the New People's Army (NPA) in Marikina City. He was also the captain of an NPA camp in the province.

Querubin also led the team that was sent to help kill the NPA's Special Operations Division in a series of attacks on the NPA in Marikina.

Querubin is a member of the 1979 of the Philippine Military Academy. He was born in March 1958. (See the front-page story.)

was just sent to Balibatan by private plane. He said the Defense Forces did not distribute Balikatan funds to him.

"It is also impossible for me to say any more about it than to describe such actions," he said.

Gen. Benito Sison, chair of the Senate defense committee, yesterday said Sison should make a final complaint and send it to the court as he could see on his allegations.

Sison, a former chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, said that he would submit the case if the money involved came from the Department of National Defense or the AFP.

Goffin said the had wanted to send complaints to Washington and to the court she was being retained by her justice officials.

He decided to come out with her story after she felt she was being harassed and she talked about the case publicly over the radio in the Philippines on Tuesday.

Tables turned

Upon learning about her difficulties, Lt. Col. Romeo Benerio Jr. turned the tables on Sison.

The AFP spokesman said the US Armed Forces had not released any funds to its Philippine counterpart, which had its own corresponding amount allocated for the annual joint military exercises.

Benerio also said Sison was being charged by the Office of the Secretary and Department Head for malversation for failing to account for P2.5 million supposedly disbursed to her without Goffin's knowledge.

"Because of that, she was placed under investigation two years ago," Benerio told reporters in an interview in Camp Aguinaldo.

Goffin is also being charged by the board of supervisors for allegedly failing to account for P2,500 in fund expenditures in 2007, gave information and information for refusing to be assigned to an investigation.

Use grievance machinery

Keeping the allegations, Goffin said the board handled the P2.5 million as the way to the fund remained as that was.

"I only acted as a facilitator of the operations team's requirements," she said. "I did not make it clear, there was no money handed to me and I did not manage the funds."

Goffin said the bill of charges against her was mostly an attempt by high-ranking officers to get back at her for leaving so much about the military in the Balikatan exercises.

In a statement, Navy spokesman Lt. Col. Miguel Serrano said Goffin's allegations were serious enough to warrant investigation and investigation.

"We hope her case will be in the open, transparent and without any bias or prejudice. The board will help her clear her name," Serrano said.

She also mentioned Goffin that pending the approval of her resignation, which was filed on April 15, she would have to make use of the military's grievance machinery to solve her allegations and grievances.

"This is as far as I can go to help her good name and reputation of the institution she continues to serve," Serrano said.

The law's confidentiality clause means both victim and accused in a trafficking case.

Also, every in the book of the PWD's Criminal Investigation and Detection Division (CDD) said the suspect had complained about his "physical condition" and said that he experienced "hitting."

CDD members took him to the nearby hospital, which is also under Camp Green. The inmate went to check but was denied access.

Members of the Australian's defense team said they had been informed by PWD of the matter. They said they had no first-hand information on the inmate's condition, but were told that he was a diabetic and was pale when he was taken to the emergency room.

Stable condition

Speaking off the record, police sources said the man's condition had stabilized but that he was still in the emergency room under round-the-clock police guard.

No names

The Australian, along with his Filipino companion, has been held at the CDD detention unit since May 8. They were arrested for allegedly molesting a 12-year-old boy at the Australian's parolee area at the parking lot of a public construction building in Makati City.

The 21-year-old Filipino was said to have served in the pling.

No bail

The Australian was ordered indicted by Prosecutor Benjamin Liming for violation of Republic Act No. 7612 Special Protection of Children Against Child Abuse and Republic Act No. 9262 for "neglig-ing the welfare of a trafficked person."

He had been recommended for the first charge, bail of P200,000 may be for the record.

The Filipino was ordered charged with qualified trafficking in person under RA 9262. He had been recommended.

An official of the Australian law, being visited the proposed inmate's detention quarters at the CDD at past noon yesterday. Australian officials have been coordinating with local police since the time of the man's arrest.

Bail was still pending down at least 30 other cases believed to have also been victims to the Australian, who has reportedly been staying here for several years.

Pinpal's child-rights advocate

The proposed pling may have been a victim of substantial harm, according to his older sister, who is an officer of a non-governmental organization that sponsors children's education.

The aid may of how the man's abuse began was told by Marissa, who arrived in the Makati Regional Trial Court yesterday to get a copy of the criminal charges filed against the first inmate and his brother.

Marissa said her brother was the youngest of six siblings.

"According to the screening officer, he was molested/abused, though I couldn't confirm it because he wouldn't speak about it to his family," she told the inquirer.

"But I think he could have been molested. I can't think of any other way that he could have met the Australian," she said.

She said her brother was molested or not, Marissa said she believed there was no abuse for his involvement, especially because she was a child-rights advocate.

"I was really shocked, I myself being an, kind of, advocate (of) justice, being his older sister, I could not believe it. But my other half is here. I've been fighting against this for so long... I don't remember being molested/abused. I don't remember being molested," she said.

Responsibility

Marissa said she felt somehow responsible for what had happened to her brother, who she described as "naive" (naïve).

"Maybe because of my busy schedule, I wasn't able to guide him... I'm usually not at home at night due to my involvement in a Catholic group," she said.

Her brother's only "sister," she said, was hanging out with friends and neighbors. He also hardly used the computer, and she hardly did any housework at home.

Marissa said her brother had stopped going to school because he hardly had money for transportation. But she said the family was "not that poor" for him to resort to something like pling.

Live play

"It's only now that he's realizing the consequences of what he did. In Kanya, he's putting him to rest (it was like play to him). It's really painful for me (family) especially since we seem to affected with pre-emptive self-defense," she said.

At the time of the arrest, Marissa's brother was on the back seat of the Australian's car and the 12-year-old boy was in the front passenger seat.

The boy said in his sworn statement that the "pling" introduced him to the 47-year-old foreigner called "Stashy" sometime in April.

Car bomb kills 7 Afghan 08/02/97—A suicide car bomb exploded outside a United States military base in Afghanistan on Wednesday, killing seven Afghans in the town of Baidaryeh, about 100 miles south of Kabul. In two days, officials said, the insurgent Taliban movement claimed responsibility for the blast, saying the bomber had been ordered to kill U.S. troops. The bomber was killed in the explosion. Five bodies, some of which were not tested, were taken to the town of Fardah, about 100 miles south of Kabul.

San Miguel unit, GSIS forge P3-B property deal

By Dennis C. Quinsac

SAN MIGUEL PROPERTY DEVELOPMENT INC. has entered into a P3-B joint venture deal with the Government Service Insurance Corporation (GSIS) to develop the present 1.2-hectare, 2,815-sq-meter prime property near Greenbelt 1 into an upscale serviced apartment.

San Miguel Corp.'s property development division is developing a 127-unit serviced apartment in the area adjacent to Shangri-La hotel, into a residential complex. GSIS' head of property development, Raul Cruz said in a briefing after the company's stockholders' meeting.

SMPI issued a 30-30-30 percent joint venture company with the GSIS to develop the property and take it over for long for the project. The GSIS lead is valued at P300 million, which will be used to construct the 127-unit serviced apartment. The rest of the P3-B joint venture company cost will be covered externally according to SMPI head of finance and administration, GIP Francisco.

"Most of the equity would rather go to serviced apartment building will have 424 units that will be leased out under a 10-year lease. The first 10 years will be leased to 25 owners including a three-fourth portion. This is SMPI's first entry into the serviced apartment business.

"Most of the equity would rather go to serviced apartment than to a single detached house in Alabang or even in Dasmariñas (Mandala), this is a serviced apartment. It's a new concept away from these offices," Cruz said.

SMPI also announced plans to implement the development of its property project, which was expected less than a year ago.

"It's initially on the planning stage," Cruz said. "We're already observing the operations of Shangri-La, which really points for anywhere between 5000 and 10,000 a night. It's not like a regular already when you're in."

"Because of the high rate charged by Shangri-La, there is a big window for a developer like San Miguel Property to go there and do a piece of the business," Cruz said.

Europan firm sets up Asian hub in Iloilo

By Hector R. Singson
Iloilo Bureau

ILOILO CITY—A EUROPEAN software development company is setting up a new business unit in Iloilo, providing a big boost to the province's IT-based services and information technology (IT) sector.

The Iloilo-based R22 Software was opened to two units of the firm last April 28 in a ceremony attended by the company executives and Iloilo officials led by Gov. Juan Tague Jr. and Iloilo Mayor Antonio Reyes.

The officials were to serve as the company's first clients in Iloilo, according to information provided by the company. According to the company, R22 Software would initially employ around 25 workers, but would hire more when a contract is awarded to the firm.

"We'll have more working opportunities to set up our office in Iloilo. As a global company, Iloilo is a key region for our business, which will offer business and employment opportunities."

San Francisco, from here, we will be providing software development and support services to our clients worldwide," R22 Software said in a statement after the ceremony.

The company is a global provider of cloud payment solutions, IT consulting and related services in international and domestic markets, serving providers, retailers and other businesses.

It has based its operations for the past two decades in the United States and has a network of client payment solutions.

R22 Software has established offices in Iloilo, Manila, and Cebu, according to the company.

Old gang is deliciously back

Grassi's, the top European resto of the 1990s, is back with more of the same plus innovations

Dr. John T. Vermeire

GRASSY, THE EURO-pean restaurant that once elevated fine dining to an iconic level in the '90s, is back. And this time, under the same husband-and-wife team of Bear and Maria Grazia, it caters to a bigger clientele of mallgoers at Alsheng Tower Center (ATC).

Food aficionados, of course, remember Grand's for its superb food and impeccable service when it first opened its doors in 1993 on the fifth floor of Rensselaer Building in Paris. Despite its secluded location, people from all over the metro trioped in to sit at its famous Bull-Shell Crab and Lobster Boats.

"Imagine, you had to drive all the way to Bogota and when you get there, we didn't even have toiletable things," says Morfin, daughter of the late industrialist and now Ex-mayor Ignacio "Gery" Lopez R. "For people come. Sure enough, it became a destination where."

With the country's economy then on the verge of taking off under the Ramo administration, it was a happy time as people went in a spending mood. Oaxaca's gladly indulged them by offering the finest Mexican beef, wine and seafood.

But that soon changed, recalls Martin, with the peso devaluation. To make matters worse, the Asian financial crisis that followed soon after slashed whatever hopes the Philippines had of becoming the new Asian tiger.

"When the exchange rate was almost P50 to $1, it became extremely difficult for us to maintain operations," she says. "Issues beyond our control forced us to take a different course."

Grain, is the value of the economic rents, more abundant until we call when it moved to Rodwell in the late '90s until it closed in 2000.

Old and new

When he responded at AFU on line, he said, the couple must again find a way to work the restaurant's change without affecting the quality of food and service to suffer in order to appeal to a generally younger, more budget-conscious staff crowd.

"Our old customers are delighted to find out that we're improved," says Winston. "But there's a difference between the old Grays' and this one. This isn't a fine-dining restaurant, but more of a old Miami specializing in soul food."

Apart from certain algorithms drawn like the Soft-shell Crab, Chaudh's, led by researcher David Randall Villaver, an oldhand from the restaurant's Bayswater days, offers a mix of old and new items.

The list of classics includes Angels in Marble with Pan-fried Escalope and Green Peas, Prospice Soup with Roasted Tomatoes, How-should I Wash Myself with Vegetable Consommé, and Naughty-Creaky Dairy Pillar with

One of the first things they did when they finally decided to creep: Grant's was to give some of the old boys back. He needed them, he says, if they were to come prepared.

"They have my standards and how demanding I am," says Best. "No place everybody came. Since all of them know each other, it was like one big party on a mission."

It doesn't hurt that Canton's inner-city locale, as Best describes it, "steamy-pungy" feel so warm already, such as the wooden floor and brick wall with mirror accents, set as ideal beds in the seemingly cold components such as the concrete floor and subtle air-conditioning.

"We have Luigi Mani and Corey Lyles of 3 Affirmations to thank for Gianni's new look," says Mani. "We signed yet another, this time casual enough to appeal to both our old and new clients."

What's cooking, David?

A LOT OF THINGS, BUT PROBABLY NOT a lot of dancing," quipped "American Idol" David Cook mid the busines when asked what he expects from his Manila gig with season 7 (2008) runner-up Chase Daigle. In the five months with perform in a hard-to-book venue on May 14 at the Old Hall of Arts concert grounds in Manila.

"There are a lot of fun, lively and I am very excited to perform for the people of the Philippines," said the 26-year-old singer-songwriter in an excited interview.

Already a year after winning the title, Cook said he still experiences "a small amount of stage fright" when performing before a crowd. He revealed a third place in pageant contest that helps him focus up.

"We and the band put our heads in the middle and say something stupid. Day is to realize what I want to do on stage. My worst dream are the ones where I have no show come going."

Before an interview for the interview.

Why didn't you include any song from your indie album "Stinking Heart" in your performance album?

While I greatly appreciate what are were able to do on "Stinking Heart," I wanted my major label debut to be about looking forward and not back.

How different is "Stinking Heart" from your self-titled independent album?

This new record shares a different perspective. I am writing about different things.

Censors: Ad bends truth

By Michael E. Gusi

A DISTORTION OF THE TRUTH? With how the Media and Television Bureau and Communication Board decided on Tuesday a TV commercial showing a child pulling the word "injection" as "I-I-I-C" — the name of a delivery convenience company.

"In young minds, without the guidance of an adult, that person is an injection of deception," Council chair Marissa Lopez said in a letter she sent to Supreme Justice A. Jose of the Ad Standards Council Inc. and Human Rights Commission, president of the Commission on the Protection of the Rights of the Child.

Lopez said the board received several complaints about the advertisement, which also featured actor TV host and Opus Media Board chair Edu Manzano. "The advertisement was very provocative and showed an adult pulling the word 'injection' as 'I-I-I-C'," Lopez said. "The setting is a hospital and, according to the boy's name, Marissa also, 'I-I-I-C'."

Lopez said Manzano is also a second look at the ad. "The average child may not have [an] adult's grasp of figures of speech," said Lopez.

Because Government tried to reach Manzano for comment but his mobile phone was either not working, or turned off.

Manzano earlier reported that a media firm was paid by the members of the Communications Commission based on the MTRCB and the Department of Education to have the "injection" and "injection" TV ad pulled up.
